

BREAKING NEWS: Student dies after Ohio high school shooting

Justice Dept. gets 'award' for worst secrecy work

Updated 2/14/2012 8:38 PM

6

Recommend

11

1

WASHINGTON (AP) – A group dedicated to reducing government secrecy gave its annual worst performance award Tuesday to the Justice Department, the agency President Obama ordered in 2009 to lead his drive to open more government records to the public.

Videos you may be interested in

Video thumbnails and titles including 'police shootings', 'Formula gets first new home since...', and a sponsored link for 'SimpleHeartTest.co'.

Most Popular

Stories

- One dead, 4 injured in Ohio school shooting
Brewer won't attend Obama dinner for...
Swing states poll: Health care law hurts...
Rick Santorum expected to get Secret...
Russia, Ukraine agents foil Putin...

Videos

- Oscar stars on the Red Carpet
EXCLUSIVE: Darth Maul trailer
Beacon: the new remote

Photos

- Cruise ship runs aground off of Italy
Osama bin Laden killed
Little Free Libraries around Wisconsin

Most Popular E-mail Newsletter

Sign up to get:

Top viewed stories, photo galleries and community posts of the day

Most popular right now: 3 doomsaying experts who foresee economic devastation ahead

Sign up for USA TODAY E-mail newsletters

Ads by Google

State- Local Transparency

Gov. accountability model bills and tools for citizens and legislators.

www.sunshinestandard.org

Symantec Zero Disruption

Symantec Solutions Support Public Sector IT. Play The Game And Learn!

www.ZeroDisruption.com

How to Buy Gold

Physical Gold Shipped to Your Door Free Investor Kit. Since 1960.

Goldline.com/Buy-Gold

The National Security Archive said the department has prosecuted whistle-blowers as leakers of classified information, recycled legal views from the administration of George W. Bush arguing for greater secrecy and charged officials under the Espionage Act for speaking with journalists. The archive said the department also has increased its use of a specific, discretionary Freedom of Information Act exemption whose application Obama ordered federal officials to curtail so more documents would reach the public.

The Justice Department has opened six criminal leak cases under the Obama administration, two of them involving an ex-CIA officer and the New York Times.

"Anyone who knows anything about the Freedom of Information Act will tell you that the Department of Justice is doing more than ever to promote openness and transparency under that act," department spokeswoman Tracy Schmalter said Tuesday. The National Security Archives' "analysis is really distant from the facts."

"As a law enforcement organization we must always strike the proper balance between First Amendment freedoms and the strong law enforcement and national security interest in investigating unauthorized disclosures of classified information," Schmalter said.

The archive is a frequent user of the Freedom of Information Act. Years ago, it decided to highlight difficulties in using the act and other government secrecy measures by bestowing an annual Rosemary Award, named after President Richard Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, who erased 18 1/2 minutes of a White House tape recording in the Watergate scandal.

The nonprofit group cited two Supreme Court cases in which the Obama administration argued in favor of expansive exemptions protecting government documents from public disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act.

Last year, the Justice Department withheld information from the public 1,500 times by invoking a FOIA exemption protecting the confidentiality of internal agency deliberations, up from 1,200 times in 2010, the archive reported. In 2009, the Obama administration in a government-wide directive from the Justice Department told federal agencies to use their discretion to sharply reduce how often they claim this exemption, which is not mandatory.

Archive director Tom Blanton said that in assessing which federal agency should get the group's worst open government performance award, the Justice Department "edged out a crowded field of contending agencies and career officials who seem in practical rebellion against President Obama's open-government orders."

Copyright 2012 The Associated Press. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.

For more information about reprints & permissions, visit our FAQ's. To report corrections and clarifications, contact Standards Editor Brent Jones. For publication consideration in the newspaper, send comments to letters@usatoday.com. Include name, phone number, city and state for verification. To view our corrections, go to corrections.usatoday.com.

Posted 2/14/2012 8:38 PM | Updated 2/14/2012 8:38 PM

More from USATODAY

Powell had hundreds of cartoon sex and incest images USATODAY.com in News

'Mass Effect 3' becomes true space oddity USA TODAY in Game Hunters

Actor Masi Oka a geek at heart USATODAY.com in Tech

Russia, Ukraine agents foil Putin assassination plot USATODAY.com in News

Chicago cops order Ford's new police cars USATODAY.com in Drive On

More from the web

How To Teach Math Facts Post-It Activity Center

Time to hang up on your landline? BankRate.com

Video: Massive shifts in the geopolitical landscape in 2012 Merrill Lynch: Wealth Management

2 Tax Deductions You Won't Get Next Year HouseLogic

Unions Killed the Twinkie Fox Business

[?]

USA TODAY is now using Facebook Comments on our stories and blog posts to provide an enhanced user experience. To post a comment, log into Facebook and then "Add" your comment. To report spam or abuse, click the "X" in the upper right corner of the comment box. To find out more, read the FAQ and Conversation Guidelines.

USA TODAY Digital Services

Mobile | E-Newsletters | RSS | Twitter | Podcasts | Widgets | e-Edition | USA TODAY for iPad | Kindle Edition | Subscribe to Home Delivery
Reprints & Permissions | USA TODAY Topics | Reporter Index | Corrections/Clarifications | Contact Us | Archives