

"Drawing upon a trove of new documents, the authors provide a full and fascinating account of Nixon and Kissinger's madman nuclear threat making in 1969 against North Vietnam and of the secret operation known as DUCK HOOK—as well as the reasons why Nixon called it off. I didn't know any of this as I was copying the top secret Pentagon Papers that fall, but if I had I would have given the Papers to the newspapers right away—rather than two years later, after waiting in vain for Congress to act on them—in desperate hopes of heading off massive escalation and possible nuclear war. As it was, I was just one of the millions of people whose demonstrating in October and November, the authors reveal, helped avert a catastrophe that none of us dreamed was imminent. A gripping and essential read!"

DANIEL ELLSBERG, author of Secrets: A Memoir of Vietnam and the Pentagon Papers

"Thoroughly researched and authoritatively presented, Burr and Klmball's outstanding study lays to rest the canard that Richard Nixon could have ended the Vietnam War by bombing Hanoi in 1969. The story of . . . Nixon's Madman Theory attack plan . . . is here recounted in stunning detail. Don't miss it!"

JOHN PRADOS, author of Vietnam: The History of an Unwinnable War, 1945–1975

"An important book and a real contribution to the literature on the Vietnam War, coercive diplomacy, and the use of nuclear threats."

MARILYN B. YOUNG, author of The Vietnam Wars, 1945–1990

"Finally, a well-researched and well-written account of our leaders' dangerous nuclear brinkmanship across the high years of the Cold War. There's much here that's new and much that's troubling—for today as well as yesterday."

RICHARD RHODES, Pulitzer Prize-winning author of The Making of the Atomic Bomb

"A fascinating and authoritative account of what Nixon and Kissinger thought they knew and thought they could manipulate to end the Vietnam War in Nixon's first year as president. Based on remarkable research, I have seen nothing that conveys such a vivid sense of what went on in the inner sanctum. It's stunning just how close we get to Nixon and Kissinger in their echo chamber. And then add a secret and dangerous nuclear alert. This remarkable depiction of foreign policy in the making is a terrific contribution and will become a kind of classic."

LYNN EDEN, author of Whole World on Fire: Organizations, Knowledge, and Nuclear Weapons Devastation

University Press of Kansas

Lawrence KS 66045

www.kansaspress.ku.edu

Jacket design by Karl Janssen

Photograph: bottom: President Richard Nixon and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger © Bettmann/Corbis

MODERN WAR STUDIES

ISBN 978-0-7006-2082-1

9 780700 620821